

Village Chatter Exhausted

From the Minutes of the Teachers' Federation

Margaret Haley—I move you that Jacob M. Loeb be elected president of our Federation.

Chorus of seconds, (shouts)—Make it unanimous.

Margaret Haley—It having been moved, seconded and also suggested that it be made unanimous we hereby declare Jake Loeb elected president of our Federation.

Cries: speech, speech.

Jacob M. Loeb—Teachers, you know I love you; my, how I love your Federation. I'll see that you all get a raise, and if the board doesn't give it I'll call a strike and you'll get full pay doing nothing. My dearest teachers, and Miss Haley, I thank you.

Don't be out of a job. Louis Cohen and Jake Techner have jobs to give out all the time. We asked Louis for work once and after giving our qualifications he told us to be a capitalist. Then, sez he, you don't have to work.

Also the Pollock tribe, including Gus. Gus tried to shake us but, like the cat, he came back. And they say they never come back. We will look out for your welfare, Gus.

Note how chesty Abe Gutmann is. That's because he acted as secretary pro-tem in the absence of Sammy Frankland. As a secretary he is a fine automobile driver.

We suppose that your artistic eye noted the beautiful engrossing on the cover of the programme. It is the work of our dandy little engrosser, Maury Harris. Maury is some guy pushing the pen.

Julius Altman will celebrate his 100th birthday next month. Professor Osler ought to take a look at him. He's good for fifty more years the way he looks now. You've not as Alt as you look, Julius.

Watch Maury Epstein. This is his debut as an actor. Here's hoping that Hank Irving and Dick Mansfield won't turn around in their graves.
